The Japanese have gone, and the Gree stern arrived just in time to save the New York papers from falling into that barren-ness which always intervenes when local ex-citements and wonders fail. It is rare that so just a self-appreciation is seen in the world as is shown by the greet dailies in that city in placing not the least reliance on their in-tallectual resources, but devoting their whole energies to expanding total incidents and neualities into nine days wonders. A nurder will absorb the greater part of the space of one of these papers for weeks, and some times months; the death of some of the park swans is made a leading topic for days, and such events as the visit of the Japanese or of the Great Englers a thing an essentially 'played out" as the Atlantic Cable exhaust their space and genius. When these things fail, they are reduced to the same slang whanging political articles that characterize the most provincial of the provincial press with no views beyond the success of some candidate, who has peeled for the race by cutting loose from every positive declaration of principle or policy.

The materials of which these papers are made, contrast most ludicrously with their project to take possession of the newspaper circulation of the country by their newspaper fast trains. Since the freg undertook to swell himself to the size of the ox, there has been no such rediculous attempt at expansion. Imagine a fast newspaper train, perilling life and limb, and making the most thrilling hair breadth escapes to deliver the New York papers on the Ohio River in twenty-four hours, with perhaps a report of a Coroner's inquest on a drowned woman, twenty columns long, or a history of the rise and progress of the Great Eastern omitting her failures, or an account of a huge drunk of the Alderman and other rowdles a the expense of the city in honor of the Japanese Embassy, as if the New York rowdies would not get drunk at the city's expense in honor of the Emperor Solouque. or of the most souty Congoan.

liantly to show her unmanageableness in making a landing, and to smash one of her wheels since, and she seems to have been in a shabby a condition that a large force has been employed up to this time in trying to make presentable. The price of admission to see the vessel has been fixed at one dollar, at which rate it is just to characterize the concern as a humbug, and unless the American people have less than their usual sense the exhibition will be a failure. size in a mechanical structure has very little in it to gratify the eye. The larges structure is puny compared with natural objects. All the achievements of mechanical skill are exhibited just as much by a steamer of twenty-five hundred tuns as by one of twenty-five thousand, especially when the lesser one is successful in its operation and under perfect control, and the other is imperfect. In beauty of outline the smaller ressel is greatly superior, because the greater hight of the larger vessel is only so much additional dead, flat side, having nothing in it more pleasing to the eye than any other dead. black wall. Near by, this is the impressio the Great Eastern makes. At a distance she looks like other ocean steamers; and so un-certain a judge of size is the eye, without present objects for comparison, that at even moderate distance it could hardly tell whether it was the Great Eastern or any other steamer, except by peculiarities in the detail. Yet size is all there is in Great Eastern to attract attention, and it is impaired by her failure so far to show any superior qualities, and by positive imperfection in her build and outfit. To make a pilgrimage East to see this sight would be much like one who is accustome to the sight of kegs, making a journey to see e barrel The New York Postoffice Defateation Judge Betts, of the United States District Court at New York, on Tuesday, granted an injunction to stay proceedings on the warrant of distress issued against the property of the sureties of Postmaster Fowler. The Judge also gave an opinion which makes it probable that the surcties will not be held liable on the bond, for the reason that it was delivered by Fowler to the Government without one signature which the sureties expected would be associated with them, and without their consent. The Judge also held that the bond would not hold the sureties, if at the time it was executed, the Goverament knew or had notice that Fowler was a defaulter. The Court ordered that these two questions be made an issue

This case will introduce a novelty which our venerable President, already much harrowed by Congressional Committees-a judicial investigation of the administration of one of the departments of the government which will bring its officers into Court to testify how this deficit has been allowed to accumulate, and how it has been so long

Improvement in Political Machinery. According to the Democratic State Con vention at Columbus, Democrats who assum a right to choose between the two Democratic tickets for the Presidency, have no rights which a Democratic Convention is bound to respect. The Chairman is usually regarded se the right-bower in a political meeting, but to decide as Gov. Paine did, that a member has abused the courtesy of the Convention by offering a resolution recognizing the right of Democrats to choose between the tickets, and has no right to be heard, is playing the game rather strong. The question naturally arises, what good will be accomplished by this? If Democrats are disposed to vote the Breckinridge ticket, is it supposed that a State Convention can forbid them? It is a new idea in political machinery that a State Convention can revise the action of a National Convention, and decide what part of it is fast, and what loose. Next, we shall have County Conventions revising State Conventions, and nothing will be binding until it has been carried by the appeal from the National Convention to the township or ward caucusses.

Democrat, or what is next best, a Donglas Democrat, which is as if we should say, he is a horse-chestnut, which is the next thing to a chestnut horse. His worst disqualifica tion for the Board is that he is a very efficient officer, understanding the business thoroughly, and attending to it. They are getting such men out of the Board as flut aspossible and people do say that brilliant success has stready attended the effort. However, this is all to a good end. The State will not get rid of the canals until they have become worthless and so odious to the people that parties will be obliged to take ground in favor of abandoning them, to save them-

Stambaugh is one of the orators of the party, his efforts being something like ancient muskets, more effective in the recoil than in the aim. Judge Thurman was nominated, but one of his friends said he was sick and declined. Judge Thurman must have made arrangements for a protracted sickness. There was not much competition, and it would seem that office-seeking is not a Democratic vice-On the whole, we may be thankful for Stambaugh. The party should put him on the stump early. One blast of his horn were worth a thousand men-to the Republicans,

A full electoral ticket was nominated; the senatorial Electors are Seraphine Meyers, of Stark County, and William B. Woods, of Licking. Our Tentonic fellow-citizens seem to be favorite electors on both sides.

The platform affirms various things which no body denies and denies various things which no body affirms, and is uncommonly long, an excellent virtue in a platform. It affirmed Douglas, whom some of the Delegates would have denied, but for the novel ruling of the President that the question on the resolutions could not be divided.

On the whole, the Convention was a great success: but as there were discontented spirits even in Heaven, so there were in the Convention. There was a secession under the lead of L. W. Morgan, Ex-Auditor; Hutchison, of The Great Eastern contrived very bril-Madison, member of the Legislature; Judge Belden and Judge Burchard, of Ashtabula where Judges are rather more plenty than Democrats; Marshal Johnson, of the Northern District, and William A. They called a State Convention at Columbus on the second Tuesday in August to nominate a State and Electoral ticket, and the above-named gentleman were appointed a committee to prepare an address to the Ohio Democracy. In fact, the Ohio Democracy, if not a unit, bids fair to become some thing that sounds very much like it.

Suppression of the California Mails. The California Ocean Mail service is in a muss. Commodore Vanderbilt had the old contract, and has the monopoly of the steamers. The contract has expired, and Congress made no provision for renewing it, except for such compensation as the postages would make. The Commodore refuses to carry the mails at that rate, consequently, the route is left without service, except by transient vessels. The Commodore asks $400,000 a year besides the postages. That price would have secured such service on the overland route as would have saved the country from any serious injury by the interruption of the sea service, besides furnishing a competition in the passenger business with a monopoly now extremely onerous and edious to the California travel: but Congress fooled with three routes, until, between the three stools, the country came to the ground.

Italian Meeting at the Meledcon. Our readers will bear in mind the meeting of our Italian fellow-citizens, which is to take place at the Melodeon Hall, this evening. Living under a popular government, and becoming experienced in the safety and security which it brings to its citizens, it is not surprising that these Italians should beme enthusiastic in their desire to see similar institutions producing similar effects in their own beautiful and beloved laud, and should deeply sympathize with all the events which appear to tend toward the desired consummation. They, therefore, whom sympathy or curiosity may lead to the Melodeon this evening, may expect to witness vivid feelings expressed in passionate oratory.

Bad Faith. The Portland Advertiser states that under an understanding between that city and some of the early stockholders in the Great Eastern, that she would make her first trip to that port, if suitable accommodations were provided, the city expended $100,000 in constructing a dock for her use. At a late hour last evening we were surprised to learn that the celebrated Madame Lois Montes, Countess of Landsfieldt, lay at the point of death, and was not expected to survive the night. On Saturday morning, she arose in her mans health, but soon complained of giddiness, and, lying down, was at once deprived of speech and motion by a paralytic stroke. Sunday and Monday she was able to partially recognize those about her, but yesterday seemed to have lost all consciouances, and was promounced by her medical attendants as beyond hope of life. For some time past she has resided at No. 15 Clinton-place, and during her sickness has been faithfully cared for by several of her intimate friends.

Night Signals of the Great Eastern.—
The Great Eastern is provided with the Coston Telegraphic Night-signals, by means of which she can be seen fifteen miles out. The Coston signal consists of a succession of colors in one case, so arranged as to correspond with a prearranged chart, enabling vessels at sea to communicate with each other at night with certainty. We are informed that the trials made by the United States squadrons at different stations, with these lights, have been satisfactory.

JUST AS WE HAD EXPECTED.—It turns out that the story of the piles of letters addressed by American ladies to the Japanese "Tommy" was a fabrication. A few innocent letters from little children, bidding him welcome to America, furnished the whole basis of the report, which was in fact a libel on the ladies of the eastern cities, and most unworthy of the press.

New Phase of the African Slave Traffic West India Negroes Kidnapped. The New Haven Register publishes the folowing extract from a letter dated St. Croix,

There is a very strange story here, from Tortola, which is asserted from a respectable source, and of which I have no doubt myself source, and of which I have no doubt myself of its truth, namely—that an American vessel, about two weeks since, called off the Island of Anagada and hoisted signals of distress, which of course immediately brought off a host of wreckers, all negroes or colored men, to the number of twenty-one. On their getting on board they were politely asked below to take some refreshments, when their boats were cut adrift, and the vessel made sail and stood to the north where bound to sail and stood to the north, where bound to, no one of course can tell, but 'tis generally supposed she is destined for New Orleans or supposed she is destined for New Orleans or some other southern port. Another strange circumstance has recently occurred here, which I can vouch for, and which should be made known through the press.

A number of negroes landed from an open boat a few weeks ago on the east end of this Island, who, on being questioned, stated that they, with one or two other boats, (which are supposed to have made Torclas) left the Dutch isposed to have made Tortola) left the Dutch island of Saba two nights previous to their lauding here. A Courageous Boy Saves an Old Woman's Live.—At Marston Mills, in Massachusetts, on Saturday, as a boy, Tolman, of thirteen years, and an elderly lady, Mrs. Landers, aged seventy, were attempting to get out of a dory hoat into a larger one, they fell into the water. They were probably near three hundred feet from the shore, and where the depth of the water was some seventeen feet. With most persons of their ages, under like circumstances, death would have been almost inevitable. Not so with this cool and courageous boy. He grasped hold of the lady's dress with one hand, and swam to the boat with the other, taking her along with him. dress with one hand, and swam to the boat with the other, taking her along with him. No person was in sight, and it was impossible for our hero to get into the boat without releasing his hold upon the hady. He quieted her fears by courageous assurrances, and then, raising his voice to its full strength, he succeeded, in a few moments, in rallying help which was out of sight, but who heard his cries. In another boat the rescuers came to the brave and faithful boy and the venerable matron, and saved them both.

SEIZURE OF ANOTHER SUSPECTED SLAVER .-Wednesday's New York Times observes: The revenue outter Harriet Lane, Captain Faunce, yesterday seized the bark Kate, Captain Otto, outside of Sandy Hook, as ahe was proceeding to sea, on suspicion of her being a slaver. She was found to have on board a slaver. She was found to have on board the usual appurtenances of a slave vessel, her crew being principally Portuguese and Spaniards. Some suspicious movements having been observed on the part of the steam-tug Magnolia, which was in the vicinity when the Kale was overhauled, she also was boarded by Captain Paunce, who found on board a number of men who could give no reliable account of themselves. No doubt being entertained that they were intended to swell the crew of the supposed slaver, they were detained, and the Magnolia as well as the Kale was brought back to the city.

Firemen's first at New York.—Wednesday's New York Times asys "A fire which occurred in the cellar beneath Matthew Gooderson's liquor store, in Chatham-street, at half-past ten o'clock last night, was the origin of a serious riot between the members of Engine Company No. 13 and those belonging to Engine Company No. 13. There was an outstanding grudge between the parties, and meeting together at this point, the fracas occurred. Several pistols were fired, wounding four men, while others were injured by stones and other missiles, which were freely hurled by the combatants on either side. Those most severely hurt were taken to the New York Hospital, while the others were taken to their respective homes by their friends."

Some thirty years ago, the New Yerkers were preparing to celebrate the 4th of July, and by a voluntary courtesy one of his descendants sent the General's tent, that he had used during the Revolutionary war, to New York to assist in the celebration. The General's body servant brought it, and bore a tetter to the New York Committee, asking that some attention should be paid to him, which was done. He was a quadroon, but a fine, dignified and noble looking old man.

The tent was pitched in the park, where the writer of this saw it. Shortly afterward he went up the Hadson River on a steamboat, and this servant was on board, and told me some of the habits of Genieral Washington during the war. He had a fixed hour for rising in the morning, and going to that part of his tent where his breakfast was to be prepared for him, he would enter this place and take a chair, and seat himself by the breakfast table in his morning gown, and with the Holy Bible before him, and read until breakfast time, and when his man would say to him, "General, your breakfast is ready," the General would draw out of the book, and place it between the last pages which he had been reading. The servant then brought his boots, which he would immediately draw on, throw off his morning gown, and put on his military cost and mount his horse, which was ready at the door. Then would commence the labors of the day. This is a true account of the camp life of General Washington during the Revolution—Jersey Gity Courier.
